“This year marked the 10th World Meeting of Families in Rome. More than two thousand delegates from 120 countries went to Rome for the five-day event, which aimed at highlighting the beauty of marriage and the family in today’s world. Pope Francis participated in the opening ceremonies in the Vatican’s Paul VI Hall, listening to the witness by several families who shared their experiences of the joys, concerns, hardships, and hopes of family life in the modern world...

Responding to their testimonies, Pope Francis assured all married couples and families throughout the world of his closeness to them in their concrete situations. He offered them his words of encouragement: “Start from where you are, and from there, try to journey together: together as couples, together in your own families, together with other families, together with the Church.”

Recalling the image of the Good Samaritan, the Holy Father said, “That is what I want the Church to be for all of you: A Good Samaritan that draws near to you and helps you to continue your journey and to take a step forward, however small.” He went on to indicate some of those steps, drawing on the testimonies presented earlier by families: stepping forward towards openness to marriage, to embracing crosses, towards forgiveness, towards being welcoming to others, and towards fostering fraternity... He invited families to ask themselves, “What is the word that the Lord wants to speak through our life to all those whom we meet? What ‘step forward’ is he asking of our family today?”

The Pope called on families to “stop and listen” and to allow themselves “to be changed by Him, so that you too can change the world and make it ‘home’ for all those who need to feel welcomed and accepted, those who need to encounter Christ and to know that they are loved.”
