The old has passed away: All things are made new by St. Andrew of Crete

The fulfilment of the law is Christ himself, who does not so much lead us away from the letter as lift us up to its spirit. For the law's consummation was this, that the very lawgiver accomplished his work and changed letter into spirit, summing everything up in Himself and, though subject to the law, living by grace. He changed whatever was burdensome, servile and oppressive so that we should be enslaved no longer under the elemental spirits of the world, as the Apostle says, nor held fast as bondservants under the letter of the law.

This is the highest, all-embracing benefit that Christ has bestowed on us. This is the revelation of the mystery, this is the emptying out of the divine nature, the union of God and man, and the deification of the manhood that was assumed. The present festival, the birth of the Mother of God, is the prelude, while the final act is the fore-ordained union of the Word with flesh. Today the Virgin is born, tended, formed and prepared for her role as Mother of God, who is the universal King of ages.

Justly, then, do we celebrate this mystery since it signifies for us a double Grace. We are led towards the truth, and we are led away from our condition of slavery to the letter of the law. Darkness yields before the coming of the light, and grace exchanges legalism for freedom. But midway between the two stands today's mystery, at the frontier where types and symbols give way to reality, and the old is replaced by the new.

Today this created world is raised to the dignity of a Holy place for Him who made all things. The creature is newly prepared to be a divine dwelling place for the Creator.
